Exmouth Town Council Celebrates 10th Anniversary of Managing Tourist Information Service

Exmouth Town Council is proud to be celebrating the 10th anniversary of its Tourist Information Service, a vital resource for both visitors and residents alike. Over the past decade, the service has grown significantly, starting with a humble summer house on The Strand to now operating from a permanent premises in the heart of Exmouth.

What began as a seasonal initiative in 2014 has since evolved into a year-round operation, providing invaluable information on local attractions, events, and activities. The service is run by a dedicated team of 15 volunteers, who have been instrumental in its success. Their commitment and enthusiasm have helped the Tourist Information Service become a key pillar in the town's support for tourism and community engagement.

A Decade of Growth and Achievement

The origins of the service are a testament to the Council's dedication to promoting Exmouth as a destination. Ten years ago, the Council identified a need for a central point where visitors could receive information and guidance. Lead by Councillor Bill Nash, a summer house was set up on The Strand, and since then, the service has flourished, expanding its offerings and securing a permanent premises that reflects its importance to the town.

The Tourist Information Service has not only provided assistance to countless visitors but also played a role in promoting local businesses, attractions, and events, fostering a strong connection between Exmouth and its surrounding areas.

A Heartfelt Thank You to Volunteers

At the heart of this operation are the 15 incredible volunteers who generously give their time and effort to ensure the success of the service. Their local knowledge, friendliness, and passion for Exmouth have made a significant impact on the town’s tourism experience.

The Council celebrated this milestone at an event at A La Ronde to thank the volunteers and reflect on the service’s journey.
Lisa Bowman, Town Clerk of Exmouth Town Council, commented, "We are extremely proud of the growth and success of the Tourist Information Service over the past 10 years. From its modest beginnings to the thriving operation it is today, this achievement would not have been possible without the dedication of our volunteers. They have helped to make Exmouth a welcoming and informative destination for everyone who visits.”

Looking to the Future

As Exmouth continues to attract visitors from near and far, the Tourist Information Service remains a cornerstone of the town's commitment to tourism. With plans to further enhance its offerings, including digital services and more partnerships with local businesses, Exmouth Town Council is excited for what the next decade will bring.
